

Public Information Office
United States Courts for the Ninth Circuit

Office of the Circuit Executive · 95 7th Street, San Francisco, CA 94103 · (415) 355-8800 · (415) 355-8901 Fax

NEWS RELEASE

July 14, 2017

Ninth Circuit Announces 2017 Civics Contest Winners

LAS VEGAS- Joshua Riel, a 2017 graduate at Las Vegas Academy won first place in the video competition for the 2017 Ninth Circuit Civics Contest, an educational outreach effort sponsored by the federal courts. <https://vimeo.com/221499112> Other young people from Alaska, California, Hawaii, and Washington were also contest winners.

“Not to Be Forgotten: Legal Lessons of the Japanese Internment” was the theme of the contest, which focused on the incarceration of Japanese-American citizens at the outset of World War II and its relevance today as our government seeks to protect the nation from terrorism. Students were challenged to write an essay or produce a short video focusing on legal decisions which sought to strike a balance between national security and civil rights at a time of great uncertainty.

Winners in the essay competition were:

1st place – Olivia Colleen Tafs, a freshman at West Anchorage High School in Anchorage, Alaska;
2nd place – Andrew Stahl, a senior at Bainbridge High School on Bainbridge Island, Washington; and 3rd place – Brandon Shi, a junior at Dougherty Valley High School in San Ramon, California.

Winners in the video competition were:

1st place – Joshua Riel, a senior at the Las Vegas Academy of the Arts in Las Vegas, Nevada;
2nd place – Tamara Sato and Emily Wu, both juniors at Punahou School in Honolulu, Hawaii; and 3rd place – Brianna Chapman, a sophomore at North Coast Preparatory Academy in Arcata, California.

At the circuit level, prizes of $2,000, $1,000 and $500 will be awarded to first-, second- and third-place winners in both the writing and video competition. In addition, first-place winners along with a parent/guardian will be invited to attend the opening session of the Ninth Circuit Judicial Conference.

The winning essay will be read and winning video shown on July 17, 2017, during the opening session of the Ninth Circuit Judicial Conference in San Francisco, a major gathering of the federal bench and bar from the western states.

The competition was open to students in grades 9-12 in public, private and parochial schools and home-schooled students of equivalent grade status in nine western states and two Pacific island jurisdictions. More than 1,000 young people entered the contest, which offered cash prizes, an opportunity for travel, and a chance to meet some of the nation's preeminent jurists and legal practitioners.

Federal courts in all 15 judicial districts in the Ninth Circuit held local contests with winners going on to compete in the circuit-wide competition. In all, 45 essays and 20 videos were selected for final consideration by the Ninth Circuit Courts and Community Committee, which organized the contest. Blind judging was employed in both the preliminary and final rounds.

"Civics education makes it possible for young people to become knowledgeable citizens who understand and participate in our democracy. We are extremely pleased to have had so many students from so many different places in the circuit participate," said U.S. District Judge Janis L. Sammartino of San Diego, who chairs the Ninth Circuit Courts and Community Committee.

The Ninth Circuit Courts and Community Committee, established in 2000 by the Judicial Council of the Ninth Circuit, the governing body for federal courts in the West, seeks to promote public understanding of and confidence in the judicial system. The committee includes federal judges, lawyers, and court staff. This is the fourth consecutive year in which the committee has organized a civics contest in conjunction with the circuit conference.

The winners of the local contest sponsored by the U.S. District Court for the District of Nevada are:

Essay:

1st, Annasophia Laurent; 2nd, Liara Marie Santos; and 3rd, Winona Jane Caro, all seniors from Las Vegas Academy of the Arts.

Video:

1st, Joshua Riel, senior, Las Vegas Academy of the Arts; 2nd, the team of Gregory Salsman, Andrew Hurtado and Justin Lee, juniors, West Career and Technical Academy in Las Vegas; and 3rd, Zane Mechem, Anali Macias and Ashanti Jake all seniors from Las Vegas Academy of the Arts.

###